Spring 2014 News

Change is Good

This eNewsletter marks a change and a request. My request is that you 'check out' and (if you like) "follow," my blog. I usually post 2 or 3 times a month on Cordwood Construction Wordpress blog and the posts showcase new cordwood buildings & ideas that have been graciously brought to my attention.

In the top menu on the Blog page is a FOLLOW button and all you need to do is click it to have the next blog postings sent to your email. No information of yours is shared and you can 'un-follow' at any time.

This way you could look at the blog post (it comes via email) or ignore it, depending on what is happening in your life at that moment.

The eNewsletters will still be forthcoming, but the Blog posts will come more often. Makes sense, I hope.

NOTE: Back-home Magazine just published our article on Cordwood Flooring...the link to the whole article is on the wordpress blog! Check it out.

Books and Media—Sale!

There are quite a few cordwood books on sale on my Online Bookstore.

All of my books are available in ebook format. This means as shipping goes up, you don't have to pay to have the book shipped. You can simply download and save it to your computer, tablet, Nook, Kindle, ipad or smart phone.

Another Nick Kautzer creation with a hand-crafted door.

Cordwood Conference Papers 2005 and 2011 have been reduced 20% for the next few months.

These volumes are probably the best value on the market. Also available in ebook, CD and print editions.

When you are at cordwoodconstruction.org Click on the online bookstore or the cover of Cordwood Construction Best Practices.

Private Custom Cordwood Workshops

Becky and I have begun conducting private, custom workshops for individuals and groups looking for guidance and training for their specific projects.

This is a great benefit if you are assembling a team of crafters to help you with a special building project for yourself or for another organization.

This is a very effective and inexpensive way to train you family and friends in the right way to "do" cordwood.

We have been training individuals, and family and friend groups.

Email me with the and request the Private Workshops Fact and Detail Brochure.

2014 Workshop @ Stomping Moose Farm, Idaho

Stomping Moose Farm near Bonner's Ferry, Idaho will host a 3 day Cordwood workshop:

August 30-31 and September 1 [Labor Day]

Please see the Brochure for workshop details and prices.

Visit Cordwood Construction to register online. Click on the Online Bookstore and scroll down to the Cordwood Workshop Deposit button. It is at the very bottom of the page. Click Add to Cart and select the quantity for your fee.

To register via snail mail or email complete the attached registration form and mail to Richard Flatau, W4837 Schulz Spur Drive, Merrill, Wisconsin · 54452

Featured Builders

John and Gina Chandler

John and Gina build this beautiful cabin with yellow pine and sassafras. They cut all their wood from the surrounding forest and then milled the plank, beams, posts and siding with their Wood Mizer. John created a wooden floor by utilizing the ring beam around the interior perimeter. The antler door handle is a great accent.

This cabin and the ones below have been featured in my Cordwood Construction Wordpress blog with additional pictures and explanation. There is also a venue for asking questions and answering them.

Michael Fuller Nova Scotia, Canada

Michael designed & built this beautiful cordwood cottage in Nova Scotia. There is a subtle swoosh motif with the cordwood and an interesting horizontal post mortared into the side wall. He is a designer, a builder and an artist.

Michael also wanted me to inform you, that he has 10 face cords (320 sq. ft.) of spruce FOR SALE. The spruce is peeled, dried and ready for cordwood building.

Michael says you could build a similar size house as the one pictured (380 sq. ft.) If you are interested:

Real Estate "Classifieds"

Check out this wonderful cordwood building for sale near Idaho City, Idaho. Please check my blog for specific details and contact information for the agent listing this and other properties.

Whitespace ...

To all my loyal followers, please bear with the abundance of whitespace in this issue of the newsletter.

I am adjusting to this new-fangled thing called publishing and getting the hang of the technology. I certainly welcome any assistance as I ~~strug~~ freely accept the challenge of graphic arts and design.

Ice Cream Social Media*

My final request in this volume of the newsletter is an ask that you check out my presence on the web

More Featured Builders

Anisley Bodman

Anisley Bodman completed this beautiful addition to her cordwood cabin in 2013. She used the “build small and add on later” concept to create her dream cabin in the deep woods of Maine.

I absolutely love when people send me photos of the projects with permission to share them with others. No better inspiration can be had than from someone who had the courage and foresight to plan, prepare, and build it themselves.

Bruce and Nancy Kilgore

Cordwood Guesthouse in upstate New York

Bruce and Nancy Kilgore are two of the best cordwood builders on the planet. Their attention to detail is legendary and their buildings are works of art.
